DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY

VOLUME VI.

SPRINGFIELD, KY., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1910.

NUMBER 7

SENILITY

Causes Death of Mrs. Theresa Brown.—One of County's Oldest and Best Women.

The county lost one of its oldest citizens and one of its best Christian women last Saturday when Mrs. Theresa E. Brown died at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. John R. Smith, in the eighty-eighth year of her age. The deceased had been in her usual good health until shortly before her death and even during her last days did not suffer from any well defined malady. Her end was caused by senility and was without pain and was met with the Christian resignation characteristic of the deceased.

Mrs. Brown was the wife of Geo. Brown who died many years ago, and was the mother of Mrs. John R. Smith and Mrs. John Ed Carrio, both of whom were at their mother's bedside during her last illness.

The funeral services were conducted Sunday morning at St. Dominic's church. An idea as to the quality of Mrs. Brown's Christianity can be gained from the words of Father Hennessey, her pastor, who had known her for years, and who found her in adversity and in prosperity the same good, charitable Christian woman. In his sermon he said that she was not only one of the best women he had known but the best.

Mrs. Brown was a woman of fine mind which remained clear to the last. Her loss will be felt greatly by those who knew her, but her life will be a good example to posterity.

Buckman—Mann.

Miss Mary Lill Buckman and Mr. Geo. Mann were married at 9 o'clock Saturday morning last at St. Dominic's church. The ceremony making the young people man and wife was performed by Rev. F. P. Hennessey. The only attendants were Mr. Parrott, of Lebanon, and Mrs. Richard Parrott, a sister of the bride.

Mrs. Mann is the daughter of Mr. John Buckman and is a young lady who enjoys the admiration of a host of friends. Mr. Mann is father of Nelson county.

Death of Will Grace.

Died, at the home of his father Sunday, January 16, 1910, Will Grace.

Young Grace, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Grace and a nephew of J. J. Grace, had been ill of pneumonia for only about a week prior to his death, but from the date of his illness he was very sick and but little hope was entertained for his recovery. Had the young man lived until next March he would have been 17 years old. The funeral services were conducted by Father Hennessey Monday at St. Dominic's church.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors for the kindness and deep sympathy shown us during the sickness and death of our beloved daughter, Ethel. We especially wish to thank Dr. Thompson, Mrs. Laura Hatt, Miss Minerva Raybourn, Mrs. W. D. Bottom, Mr. Jas. Cochran, the pall bearers and all who helped us in any way. We also appreciate the many beautiful floral designs.

Supervisors Adjourn.

The Board of Supervisors of Washington county adjourned Friday after having been in session two weeks. During its session the board made quite a number of raises on the taxable property of the county, the raises including both real and personal property and amounting to $250,000.00. This was anticipated because of the great appreciation in the value of real estate in this county. It is not at all improbable that the State Board of Equalization will further raise the tax list of the county. The board will again sit within a short time to hear complaints from those who have been raised.

BUSTED

No Money in the State Treasury for Kentucky Solons.

Frankfort, Ky., January 10.—"Busted!" is the way State Treasurer Farley described the condition of the State Treasury to the members of the General Assembly when they presented their state warrants to him calling for their first week's salary. A few of the members during the first of the week presented the state warrants drawn by Clerk George S. Peters, of the Senate, and Clerk James Stone, of the House, and cleaned up the coin. Then Treasurer Farley heard that the Legislature would adjourn until Monday. He was here during the last session and he knew what a rush was coming. To stem the tide of warrants he sent a communication to the Senate and House early, telling the members that there was no money left except in the school fund, and that the members or the teachers one or the other would have to wait, and "Now it's up to you," said Farley, Superintendent of Public Instruction. Crabbe insists that no money be paid out of the school fund for legislative purposes, for he thinks that he owes it to the teachers to see that they get their salaries, and if the money is paid to the legislature then the teachers will have to wait for 30 to 60 days. A committee was appointed to investigate the condition of the treasury and see if there cannot be found enough money for the members to pay their board bills while they are here, for it does not cost much to ride back and forth from home to Frankfort during the Legislature. Injunction proceedings may be resorted to by Superintendent Crabbe if the money of the teachers is used to pay the Assembliesmen. The people of Frankfort are kicking because they want the money paid to the legislators, so that they can spend it here. The situation is unparalleled for awkwardness, and not since the last Republican administration have the members been unable to get their warrants cashed at the Treasurer's office. Some of the Democratic members claim that Treasurer Farley is playing a fox game of politics to keep down appropriations, but Treasurer Farley says: "Come in and look gentlemen, and see for yourselves."

Home Cure For Eczema.

Does it not seem strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema?

A 25-cent bottle of a simple wash stops the itch and will surely convince any patient.

This wash is composed of mild and soothing oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol and glycerine, etc., and known as D. D. D. Prescription. We do not know how long the D. D. D. Laboratories will continue the 25c offer, as the remedy is regularly sold only in $1.00 bottles and has never before been put on the market on any special offers.

If you want relief to-night try a bottle at 25c on our personal recommendation.

31c TOBACCO

Record Price Realized During Past Week.—Large Sales at Good Average Price.

Last week the record for tobacco prices on the local market was broken when a basket of tobacco belonging to Peters & Haydon sold at the Farmers House for 31 cts per pound. There has been a large quantity of tobacco sold at both houses last week and this and the prices realized have been most satisfactory. Quite a quantity of tobacco from neighboring counties has been on the market. The Washington County house reports a sale of 245,000 pounds last week at prices ranging from 10 to 22 cts per pound and at an average price of $14.51 per 100 pounds. This week this house has sold about 150,000 at a good price. The Farmers House last week sold 240,000 pounds at $14.70 an hundred. Monday's sale of 31,000 at an average of $14.81 was also a splendid one.

This market now as to the quantity of tobacco handled, the quality of the same and the prices realized is making of itself a rival for some of the large markets of the country.

MACKVILLE NOTES.

Noel—Bagwell.

Miss Henrietta Noel and Mr. Edgar Bagwell were married Jan. 12, at the home of Rev. Yankey, pastor of the Christian church, at Mackville. Mrs. Bagwell is the daughter of Mr. Dick Noel, of Mackville, and is an attractive and popular young lady. Mr. Bagwell is a highly respected and prosperous young farmer of Gravel Switch, Ky. The young couple will make their home at Gravel Switch.

Mrs. Erastus Perkins spent Friday night with Mr. Richard Perkins and family, of near Williamsburg.

POEMS WORTH SPACE IN YOUR SCRAP BOOK

Life's Journey To The Beautiful City of Rest.

As we speed out of youth's sunny station
The track seems to shine in the light,
But it suddenly shoots over chasms
Or sinks into tunnels of night.
An! the hearts that were brave in the morning
Are filled with repining and fears
As they pause at the City of Sorrow
Or pass through the valley of tears.
But the roads of this perilous journey
The hands of the Master has made;
With all its discomforts and dangers,
We need not be sad or afraid.
Paths leading from light to darkness,
Ways plunging from gloom to despair,
Wind out through the tunnels of mid-night
To fields that are blooming and fair.

If you pause at the City of Trouble,
Or wait in the valley of tears,
Be patient, the train will move onward,
And rush down the track of the years.
Whatever the place is you seek for,
Whatever your game or your quest,
You shall come at the last with rejoicing
To the beautiful City of Rest.

You shall store all your baggage of worries,
You shall feel perfect peace in this realm,
You shall sail with old friends on fair waters,
You shall wander in cool fragrant gardens
With those who have loved you the best,
And the hopes that were lost in life's journey
You shall find in the City of Rest.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

The Woman With The Serpent's Tongue.

She is not old; she is not young,
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue,
The haggard cheek, the hungering eye,
The poisoned words that wildly fly,
The fanned face, the fevered hand—
Who slights the worthiest in the land,
Seers at the just, condemns the brave,
And blackens goodness in its grave.
In truthful numbers be she sung,
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue:
Concerning whom, fate hints at things
Told but in shrugs and whisperings;
Ambitious from her natal hour,
And scheming all her life for power;
With little left of seemly pride;
With venomous fangs she cannot hide,
Who half makes love to you to day,
To-morrow gives her guest away.
Burnt up within by that strange soul
She cannot shake, or yet control;
Malignant-lipped, unkind, unweet;
Past all example indirect;
Hectic, and always overstrung—
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue.
To think that such as she can mar
Names that among the noblest are!
That hands like hers can touch the springs
That move who know what men and things!
That on her will their fates have hung—
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue.
—William Watson.

Lame Near Looking to Death.

A little boy, the son of Chris. D. Peterson, a well known resident of the village of Jacksonville, Iowa, had a sudden and violent attack of cramp. Much stringy phlegm came up after giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mr. Peterson says: "I think he would have choked to death had we not given him this remedy." For sale by The Lee Haydon Drug Co.

High School Notes.

REPORTED BY PUPILS.

The debating society met last Friday afternoon and elected officers for the ensuing term of one month. Miss Naomi Rogers was nominated for President of the Society. Her nomination was seconded and made unanimous. Miss Susanna Hayes was unanimously elected Vice President. Mr. McCellan elected Secretary. Mr. Bottoms Sergeant-at-Arms. With these newly elected officers we feel confident that the society will come to the high standard set by those who have gone before. With the many new members that have enrolled since Christmas and the old ones commencing to regain energy we look forward to much progress.

Between fifteen and twenty new students have entered High School since Christmas. The highest ambition of most is to become a teacher.

Spring is coming soon with her laces, but she must carry it on for we are now dipping our fingers into a fountain of ambition. Some of us school boys and girls never get rid of spring fever, while others never have a touch of it. To some of us a school room means merely blackboards, pencils and tablets, while to others it means a withered hand of struggle—an untiring mind, and "Destiny."

The students are going to debate this coming Friday. The subject is: "Resolved: That Woman Should be given Equal Political Rights with Man." Some of the boys have been in such deep love in the past that they should tell in a most elegant manner of the wit and power of woman.

We had a trial at offhand speaking last Friday when nominating officers. Some did well, but some, not understanding that failure is the greatest means to success, refused to speak.

Death of Mrs. Locanougher.

Mrs. Lucinda Locanougher died at her daughter's, Mrs. S. C. Begley, at Fenwick, Jan. 5th. If she had lived until Feb. 5th she would have been eighty-four years old. After suffering six weeks with a burn her death was caused by pneumonia. She was laid to rest in the Bethlehem graveyard Jan. 7th. She was the mother of four children, three of whom survive her, Mrs. S. C. Begley, of Fenwick; Mrs. Jesse Salles, of Terre Haute, Ind.; Mrs. David Clark, of Kansas City, Mo. She also had twenty-two grandchildren who mourn her death.

ADVANCEMENT.

The wonderful advancement which has been made in farming methods in the last 50 years encourages a poetic dreamer to indulge in a vision of what yet another 100 years will bring forth, and he breaks out into song as follows:
Oh, it's hot! for the days of the dear old farm, when we plowed with gasoline, And the cows were fed in the dewy morning under the butter and cheese machine; When we loved to leaf by the alcohol stills that stood in the hilly corn, And used the wireless telegraph for calling the cows at night;
When the gardens grew on a grand old plan, and pumpkins and grapes and tea Were gathered by rollicking, frolicking girls from the limbs of the self-same tree! How we lily-fingered farmer boys loved to spend the day in sleep,
By the murmuring motor that the mill that shaded the complacent sheep;
When we loved to leaf by the alcohol stills that stood in the hilly corn, Till called to the farm hands' ten-cousin meal by the notes of a Gabriel's horn, Ah! then was the chance for true romance! Ah! then there was genuine charm And untroubled joy for troubled-free boy who lived on the dear old farm.

CORN KING

An Indiana Farmer Who Sets the World's Pace in the Cultivation of Cereal.

Near Whiteland, in Johnson county, Indiana, lives a farmer. His farm consists of 130 acres, and he gets up at 5 o'clock every morning, and has holes in his overalls. His name is Leonard B. Clore. He is the corn king of the world. A dozen years ago Mr. Clore began to specialize in corn. To-day he sets the world's pace in this cereal.

The Clore family very nearly keeps house with father's corn prizes. In the list is everything from a manure-spread-er to a piano, including watch, clock, stove, maddoll, lawn swing, an automobile, a quarter section of land in Texas, and a $1,000 cash prize. One of the incidentals is a silver loving cup valued at $1,000.

Mr. Clore decided a few years ago that instead of spending so much time improving their land the corn growers should give more thought to improving their breed of corn. All his efforts have been in that direction. In a specially built barn he germinates the corn in boxes of earth kept at the right temperature in early spring by gasoline stoves. Thus he knows before planting what percentage of the grains will germinate. Two ears of corn may look alike, but the vitality of one may be much higher than that of the other. Mr. Clore is also a judge of what it takes to make a perfect ear; selecting the best ears each fall, and planting the hardiest grains in the spring, he has in a great way eliminated chance in corn growing. He raises from 90 to 100 bushels of corn per acre. The average this year is 90 bushels. It is about 20 bushels more than before he began his experiments, but in addition, the quality of his corn has greatly improved. What he has done for Indiana, where his methods are followed, may be seen by the fact that the average yield for the past ten years is 55 bushels, while over the corn belt of the United States for the same period it is only 25. Experiment stations all over the United States are sending him for his high bred seed corn, and are using his methods of breeding and planting. The Car has offered him a position in the Russian Department of Agriculture.

Miss Prudis Wright, daughter of Mr. J. N. Wright, of Chicago, was united in marriage Wednesday to Mr. A. C. Medley, a young farmer of Washington county. The ceremony was performed at Chicago by Rev. N. Werner.

Mr. William Raymond Mattingly, a well known farmer, died at his home about seven miles west of Lebanon on Sunday, following a several weeks' illness of a complication of diseases, the immediate cause of his death being pneumonia.

Mr. William Alvey died at his home between Loretto and Chicago early last Sunday morning after a few days' illness of pneumonia. The funeral services and interment were at Chicago Monday morning. Deceased was 77 years of age and was an honorable, widely known and highly esteemed man. He is survived by his aged wife and two sons, James and Clarence Alvey, and one daughter, Mrs. Joe Mill, who have the sympathy of a host of friends.

SOUVENIR

Set of Majestic ware FREE

If you will call at our store during our Majestic Demonstration Week and allow us to show you the many advantages and superior qualities of the great and grand Majestic Range, and will purchase one at the regular price, we will give you FREE the beautiful and useful Souvenir Set of Ware illustrated in this advertisement. This ware is made to match the quality of the Majestic Ranges, and we know all ladies will see the beauty and utility of this set, especially the first three pieces, which are entirely new and cannot be had alone by purchase, except at a very high price. The prices of Majestic Ranges are the same, but we give the set FREE with each Majestic Range bought during demonstration week only.

REASONS WHY THE GREAT MAJESTIC YOU SHOULD BUY

1. It has the reputation of being best range money can buy.
2. It not only has the reputation but is the best range made and we will prove this to you if you will let us.
3. It is constructed of Malleable Iron (material you can't break) and of Charcoal Iron (material that resists rust 300 per cent. greater than steel) is riveted together airtight. No heat escapes or cold air enters range, thus uses very little fuel to do perfect work.
4. The reservoir alone is worth the price of the range over any other reservoir made. It boils 15 gallons of water; is heated like a tea kettle, with pocket against left-hand lining, and is movable, and sets on a frame, hence cannot wear out. When water gets too hot it can be moved away from fire.

10,230 SUICIDES

During the Year Which Has Just Closed--Some of The Chief Causes.

"Is the world growing better?" seems to be answered in the affirmative by the figures on crime and on benefactions for the year 1909, says a dispatch from Chicago. Also the world seems to have grown more prosperous as suggested by a falling off in the number of suicides.

Bequests and donations of the beneficiary order aggregate $147,641,253, compared with $90,932,000 in 1908. John D. Rockefeller gave $12,130,000; Andrew Carnegie gave $4,652,000; Mrs. Russell Sage, $1,201,750, and Dr. D. K. Pearson, $541,000. The total of Mr. Carnegie's gifts to date is $162,000,000; of Mr. Rockefeller's $131,000,000; of Mrs. Sage's $100,000,000 and of Dr. Pearson's $3,000,000. The total gifts by women in 1909 was $13,293,990.

Figures on lynching for a period of twenty-five years show that instances of mob rule are not half what they were during the first half of that period and that there has been a pretty steady decrease in the last decade. Illinois is the only northern State where a lynching occurred.

Suicides numbered 10,230, compared with 10,852 in 1908. Of this year's crop 5276 were males and 3,025 females. Among the professional men, physicians led the list. Ten Attorneys, nine clergymen, seven college professors and six newspaper men and four artists took their own lives. Cases of self-destruction attributed to business reverses were only eighty-one compared with 600 in 1908. This is supposedly due to reigning prosperity. There was a sharp decline of those who killed themselves because of ill health.

Suicides and cases of death by violence in strikes and riots, infanticide, highwaymen and other means numbered 8,103, a decrease of 840 from the record of the year before.

Of the lynchings, seventy-three victims were negroes and fourteen whites, Mississippi leading with twelve.

Total embezzlements were $8,160,823, compared with $13,555,536 in 1908; bank defaultations led with $2,995,000; forgeries next with $1,683,100; public subscription, $554,500.

Legal executions 107, against 92 in 1908. Of these forty-three took place in Northern and sixty-four in Southern States. Fifty-five of the condemned were negroes, forty-eight white, three Chinese and one Indian. Pennsylvania led with twelve and New York was second with ten.

It's All Good Reading.

The Dover News, in commenting on the complaint of some subscribers regarding the amount of advertising carried by the papers, says: Some subscribers complain of "too much advertising" in their county papers. It's not so. You can't get too much, for it is here that the subscriber gets the actual cash returns for his outlay for patronage. Of course he gets his money's worth of entertainment in the reading matter, but his financial gain comes from studying the ads. If in carefully studying the ads he finds where he can get bargains and save ten cents here, a quarter there and perhaps a dollar or two over by patronizing the man who tells his prices in the paper, instead of paying the "pint's a pound the whole year round" prices at the old place. Don't you see how you will not only save the price of your subscription but many times over by buying from the man who has the bargains and is not afraid to pay money to the printer to let you know of them. It will pay you to read over every advertisement in this paper.

Death of Mr. N. R. Boone.

Mr. N. R. Boone, son of the late Mr. George Boone, died at his home on the Gilkey Run-pike about two miles from town on Sunday morning, Jan. 9th, following a short illness of pneumonia. He had been in ill health for a number of months. About six months ago after treatment at an Infirmary in Louisville it was hoped his health had been fully restored; however, for the last few weeks he had seemed to fail, until the attack of pneumonia which developed about four days before death.

Mr. Boone is survived by his wife, who before marriage was Miss Jessie Harrington, daughter of the late Mr. James Harrington, of this city, and by eight children, six girls and two boys two brothers, Mr. Charles Boone, of the firm, Boone, Wigginton & Sisco, of Bardonia, and Mr. Frank Boone, of Paducah, Ky., and one sister, Mrs. Kate Warner, residing in this city.

Mr. Boone was a member of the Boone Bros. Distillery Co., which was operated in this county for a number of years, discontinuing business about eight years ago. Since that time he has given his attention to farming, and was considered one of our most experienced and practical farmers. He was of a kindly social disposition, of affable pleasing manner which together with his many sterling traits of character won for him very many friends to whom he was always loyal and devoted.

The funeral obsequies were conducted at St. Joseph's church Monday morning at ten o'clock by Very Rev. C. J. O'Connell, Pastor.--Ky. Standard.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR CONGRESS.—We are authorized to announce the Hon. Ben Johnson, of Nelson county, as a candidate for reelection to Congress from the Fourth Congressional District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Last week President Taft made some of the hungry faithful in Kentucky very happy, while at the same time his action caused weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth in other quarters. This was due to the first instalment of appointments to Federal positions in Kentucky. In this the Fifth district Ludlow Petty, of Shelbyville, was appointed Collector of Internal Revenue to succeed J. A. Craft, who has held the office for eight years. Collector Craft has made an excellent official but Senator Bradley, who is again in the saddle, was behind Petty. The latter has been postmaster at Shelbyville and private secretary to Senator Bradley and is a well known Republican politician.

A. J. Patrick, of Salvysville, was appointed U. S. Marshal for the Eastern District to succeed Marshal Sharpe. The local G. O. P.'s are fighting for the other places with the indications that Tim Fields, of Ashland, will be appointed Collector to succeed S. J. Roberts, J. C. Speight or M. H. Thatcher as U. S. District Attorney for the Western district and George Long, Marshal.

Fever Sores

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by The Leo Haydon Drug Co.

In Loving Remembrance of Ethel Turner.

As God in His wisdom selects the sweetest souls to adorn His heavenly kingdom, we are not surprised that He sent His angel to the home of Ethel Turner on the night of Jan. 14, 1910, at midnight and bade her come up higher.

The deceased was seriously ill for twelve days of that much dreaded disease, pneumonia. Her temperature was so high and breathing so short that her relatives and friends had very little hope of her recovery from the first of her illness.

Ethel was the oldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Hartford Turner; was born March 17, 1887, and died Jan. 14, 1910, thus being 22 years, 9 months and 27 days old. She leaves a father, mother, two brothers, one sister, several aunts and uncles to mourn her early death. Ethel spent the first eighteen years of her life 'at her father's home, near Mackville, where she numbered her friends by her acquaintances, and then was called by her avocation to Indianapolis, where she spent the greater part of the last four years of her life. She made many friends while in that city, as was shown by the words of sympathy and the floral tributes that were sent from there. She possessed what only a few can call their own—an unspotted character, an amiable disposition and strict business principle.

She joined the Methodist church when quite young and lived a consistent Christian life.

Her funeral services were held at the church of which she was a member by Rev. Baird and the immense crowd gave evidence of the estimation in which she was held, while the many beautiful floral designs testified that her loving friends wanted to remember her even in death.

All that loving hands could do for her was done, every wish she expressed was gratified by her heart-broken relatives, and this should be of sweet consolation to them in this lonely time of grief.

Look up dear father, mother, brothers, sister, uncles and aunts and think of these consoling words spoken by her sweet lips to different members of the family: "I am not afraid to die," "Meet me in heaven, brother," "Mama, can't you go with me?" and "If kind Providence would have permitted our sinful vision to have seen those dearly loved ones to receive her spirit, your tears would be dried and you would never wish her back.

Years will come and pass away, But you, dear Ethel, have gone to stay.

We'll miss your smiling, pleasant face, As none on earth can take your place. We'll humbly bow to the will of God, As He says to us, "Pass under the rod."

Hoping and praying, supported by His grace, Some day to behold you face to face. ONE WHO LOVED HER.

DEEP CREEK.

Mr. and Mrs. George Elliott entertained on last Saturday as their guests Mr. Will Arnold, wife and two sons, Freddie and Arthur, Mrs. Francis Arnold, Mr. J. A. Russell and Mrs. Josie Holderman.

The little daughter of Mr. W. H. Elliott is very sick at this writing. We hope for her speedy recovery.

Mr. W. B. Carpenter and family have moved to J. H. Elliott's farm.

We are having good prayer meeting at Beech Grove church every Thursday night. Everybody invited.

Mrs. Josie Holderman, Mrs. W. B. Carpenter and Mrs. Ida Elliott were guests of Mrs. Bell Elliott Monday afternoon.

Mr. Anderson Holderman sold his farm to his uncle, John Elliott, for $4,500. Possession next year.

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18, last, my little three year old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day, Oct. 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the surest, safest and quickest cure for colds, both for children and adults, of any I have ever used." For sale by The Leo Haydon Drug Co.

Ben Johnson Boom

On At Frankfort.

Friends of Congressman Ben Johnson are elated over the cordial reception which has been given him in Frankfort and say that his popularity has been shown conclusively during the last few days. They say that several of the men mentioned as possible candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor have gone to Mr. Johnson in the last few days and told him they would not only run but would support him heartily.

Mr. Johnson came to Frankfort for the opening of the Legislature and took a large room at the Capital Hotel, where he has had headquarters for his friends. The big room, which is at the ladies' entrance to the hotel, has been the center of political activity and has been full of people all day and most of the night. The way Democrats from all over Kentucky have crowded to Mr. Johnson's headquarters to pledge to him their support has shown, Mr. Johnson's friends say, that he is the strongest man in the party to make the race for Governor.

It has certainly been a tribute to the man and his worth, to see the crowds of men who go to him with expressions of good will and who say nice things about him. It was known to Mr. Johnson's friends that he was well liked and a good mixer, but the ovation which has been given him in Frankfort this week has opened the eyes of even his most ardent admirers. They say they knew he was strong with the people but did not know he could command the strength that he has already shown by his visit to Frankfort.

Mr. Johnson says he is going to be in the race for the Democratic nomination for Governor and he believes and of course is confident that he will be elected if he is nominated. Mr. Johnson will be in Frankfort several days longer until the Legislature takes a recess. His friends say that he has strengthened his candidacy greatly by his visit to Frankfort and they are jubilant over the way he and the candidacy have been received by the members of the General Assembly and those attending the sessions as spectators.—Courier J. Jan. 7.

Dr. Knapp at Lexington.

A great deal of interest has been manifested, editorially and otherwise, throughout the South in the coming tour of Dr. Seaman A. Knapp, of the Department of Agriculture in January, and many inquiries have been received by him asking what topics he will discuss on his journey. Dr. Knapp has very kindly consented to furnish the press and through the press the farmers, with the subjects of his addresses. At Lexington Ky., where he will speak on January 21st, at 2:30 P. M., his subject will be "Kinds of Husbands Sought to the Blue Grass Territory," in which it will be shown that the blue grass region is especially adapted to certain lines of husbandry and these are among the most profitable of all. The same general method will be pursued in the addresses in the several states outlining in each such policies as are most important and applicable to the rural population.

FADS OF THE FAIR.

News For Pajamas Girls—Tunic Lines Appear on Wraps.

Girls who sleep in pajamas are ordering dainty coats and trousers sets of tan, blue, white or mauve sheer madras, dotted mercerized cotton, challis, wash silk or flannel dimity. They are bound with inaudible ribbon and closed with cords and large silk covered buttons.

Many of the most elaborate wraps are assuming draped tunic lines and have taken on knottings and flusiness at the bottom which distinguished tunic models during the past summer.

A novel trimming that appears on even the plainest of the separate coats takes the form of long rouleaux of cloth which are arranged in straight lines, alternated here and there with a series of curvilinear scrolls.

A charming little frock for a girl is here depicted. It is relieved from over-severity and is smart yet youthful in effect, and it can be utilized for a great many different materials. French serge in a pretty catwalk shade, with trimmings of applique and with yoke and cuffs of lace, is used in the dress illustrated.

FANCIES IN FURS.

Regular "Whoppers" of Muffs Are Worn This Season—The Bolster Varieties. Broad ermine scarfs with white brocade bands having the design outlined with antique silver thread or black bands and with a fringe of tails are a delightful adjunct to the evening toilet. They are lined with chiton or lace.

The biggest muffs of the season are in bolster style, at least three-quarters of a yard long and exactly the size of a bolster roll. These long muffs are also called "automobile muffs" and a Persian lamb specimen is thought especially smart.

Next in size comes the granny muff, which makes up in breadth what the bolster offers in length. The granny muffs make a very busy fur and is very big and soft and cuddly.

One of the faddy muffs of the season is the "toy dog" affair. This is about the size of a Pomeranian and appears in white or black fox, with the head of the animal attached.

All sorts of sleeves are being used in the winter, both plain and fancy. Here are four that can be utilized in various ways. The sleeves that combine the plain material with the tucks is adapted for remodeling. The draped sleeve is better carried out in thin fabrics, while the plain sleeves are with the regulation tight variety of manche.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

May Mantons patterns of these sleeves including the design, and one cover in sizes small 32 to 34, medium from 36 to 38, large 40 to 42 inches bust measure. Send in cents to this office, giving number, 688, and the pattern will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

VALLEY HILL.

The rain of the past week has failed to unearth anything of especial interest to the readers. Yet despite that fact several of our citizens braved the breeze and made a few social calls.

Mrs. Thos. Baker, of Pleasant Grove, visited friends at this place Wednesday. Messrs. Jas. Gregory and John Goatley were guests of Mrs. J. W. Hughes Wednesday.

Miss Imogene Goatley was the guest of her cousin, Miss Pearl Goatley, last week-end.

Rolley Simpson, who has been very ill of typhoid fever, is out again.

Miss Virginia Foster, of Louisville, continues the guest of relatives here.

T. C. Tatum is an active buyer of good tobacco on the local markets.

Rev. Hamilton, of Louisville, was the guest of W. T. Snider and wife Saturday and Sunday, filling his appointment at the New Hope Baptist church Sunday.

Mr. T. A. Tatum is attending the interest of the mercantile business at this place during the absence of our general merchant.

Mr. J. Watt Clements, of Louisville, visited his mother, of near this place, Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Nannie Pinkston, of Litsay, spent last week as the guest of relatives at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Derringer spent Sunday with J. E. Derringer, of this place.

Miss Pearl Goatley has returned to her home here, after a brief visit to relatives in Springfield.

Hughes Goatley and sons sold the remaining 1,740 pounds of their 1909 crop of tobacco to Chas. Camden at $15 per cwt. Monday.

We regret the death of Will Grace, who died Sunday at the home of his father, Mr. Ed Grace, of near Litsay, after a short illness of pneumonia. Condolence is meted out to the bereaved parents and relatives by their many friends.

Walter and Ray Goatley were guests at Elm Hill Sunday.

Your correspondent had the pleasure of being captivated Sunday evening while driving in the impenetrable darkness that was so promiscuously shining on that date. And from getting muddy from Genesis to Revelations there was no damage done.

We note with particular regret that we lose our valuable Deep Creek correspondent. We regret very much to give up reading her interesting letters and hope to hear from her whenever she may go and wish her success in her new home.

The deep snow of the past two weeks departed as gently as it came. However, it left us decidedly in the mud.

Most all of the tobacco has been stripped in this section and sold on the local loose leaf markets, bringing on the average an unusually good price.

We notice that Messrs. Sturgeon and Wyoff have purchased an interest in the Farmers Warehouse and we wish them unalloyed success, which they certainly deserve.

Words are inadequate to express our appreciation of the kind remarks made by the editor in the last issue of The Sun. Indeed we appreciate that sort of bouquets. It is much nicer to receive them when one can appreciate them, when the fragrance thereof permeates the very soul of the recipient and fills his heart to overflowing with real ecstasy. The better than to have their grave strewn with blankets of violets, rose emblems or vases of lilies, the beauty of which we see not and the fragrance thereof is wasted on desert air. I would that every one could attain the habit of speaking plainly their sentiments. It is true there are those things which are better unsaid, but nevertheless be deceitful. And let us add by way of parenthesis, the writer has had lots of things to account for by telling the truth as a correspondent (not otherwise). Since our career began in reportorial work 7 years ago, in the old S. B. C. at Pleasant Grove, wherein was edited a monthly journal known to the school as "The Friday Afternoon Visitor," of which the writer had the distinguished honor of being editor (one month, and that broke up the school), we have never received as much praise as the editor expressed in his last issue, therefore we are "tootin' out horn," tootin' it for The Sun, too. Long may it live and prosper. And just as long as it is to be Democracy that long will the editor be a friend of mine. To him we extend a hearty thank you.

BROOKSVILLE.

Those who visited Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Colvin Saturday were Mrs. W. E. Cheatham and sister, Miss West, Mrs. J. W. Walls, Mrs. Sallie Noel, Mr. Pope Bishop and family, Mr. Sanford Yocum and wife, Hester Noel and Nora Cheatham. A delightful day was spent. Elmer Montgomery is on the sick list. Mr. Clifton Cornea and Miss Hazle Edleman, of Botand, spent from Sunday till Thursday with Carl and Eleonora Cooksey.

Mr. Jim Cheatham of Rochell Illinois is visiting relatives here.

Oscar Shirley was at this place Sunday.

Messrs. Joe Noel and George Colvin were in Springfield Thursday.

George Colvin bought a crop of tobacco from Bob Robinson; price unknown. Mr. Harve Barnett and wife and Carl Walls visited relatives at Kirkland last week.

Mr. John Terree and wife of Indiana are spending a few days here.

Misses Vennie and Bettie Walls spent Saturday afternoon with Maud Noel.

Mr. J. J. Sharp and little daughter Adeline visited relatives at Mercer last week.

Mr. Royalty, of Tatham, and Sarah Keeling was the guest of Miss Nora Cheatham Sunday.

Mrs. Creed Settles of Indiana who is with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Gardner is very sick.

A Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches for 2 or 3 weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is often 2 or 3 months before he is fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, as by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, an ointment, a cure may be effected in less than one week's time, and in many cases within three days. Sold by The Lee Haydon Drug Co.

The Scrap Book

An Abrupt Greeting.

Some years ago Joaquin Miller, the "poet of the Sierras," and Blank, the "sweet swan of Packington," went to England together and made a pilgrimage to the house of Swinburne. Arrived at the jealously guarded retreat of the great metrist, they confessed themselves to the poet's faithful Cerberus, Mr. Watts Duntun. The latter withdrew to break the glad news to Swinburne, and the visitors began to think anxiously of the nice things they wanted to say. Joaquin took a firm grip of his drowsing whiskers, while Blank fingered nervously a neat roll of manuscript in an inner pocket. Soon a door was opened on an upper floor, Duntun was heard to make his announcement, and then the rich voice of the author of "Laus Venenit" roared down the stairway: "Tell Miller to come up. Tell the other man to go to hell!"

Redemption.

If from the darkened paths of guilt To narrow ways of ethereal love To save to win the souls of men, Use not the words and tears Which lend to endless chains of wrong Another link to strengthen them, But seek to gather from thy life As spinning daily, thread by thread, A web of glory running and bright, And ask thy soul each passing hour, Whistling fingering wide its shining mesh, The question, "Am I better right?" —G. M. Wheelock.

In a Minute.

An Irishman, who was, of course, named Pat, went to heaven, and was met at the door by St. Peter. Pat passed the time waiting politely with the guardian of the gate and commented upon the grandeur of everything around him, and then St. Peter said: "Yes, this is a great place. With us a million years are just like a minute, and a million dollars are like a cent." "Is that so?" inquired Pat modestly. Then, "Say, would you mind lending me a cent?" "Yes," returned St. Peter, "in a minute."

A Hard One.

Two ladies, one young and the other somewhat ancient, were rather unfortunate in not being asked to dance at a party they were attending. The younger lady said spitefully, as she sat beside the other during a lull: "I wonder, dear, if I shall lose my looks, too, when I get to be your age." "You'll be lucky if you do," snipped the older lady.

Enlightened.

Victor Hugo had accepted an invitation to dine at the house of one of those ardent republicans who at the time were wittily termed "les precieuses ridicules."

The dinner time came, and yet no butler appeared to pronounce the formula "Madame est servie." Finally one of the intimates, M. vice president of the senate, approached the mistress of the house and said, laughing: "Pardon me, but have I made a mistake? I thought that you had asked us to be thirteen at table."

The lady whispered in reply: "Both—fourteen. We were to have been fourteen. But M. Le Royer has excused himself at the last moment, and I've had to send for a substitute. There's one of our guests here who would never sit down if we were thirteen at table."

A moment later M. — was talking with Victor Hugo. "Can you imagine why we don't dine?" he asked the poet. "It's because there's some jackass here who is afraid of sitting down thirteen at table!"

And Hugo replied severely and solemnly, "I am that jackass."

Perfectly Proper.

A young preacher who was staying at a clergy house was in the habit of retiring to his room for an hour or more each day to practice pulpit oratory. At such times he filled the house with sounds of fervor and pathos and emptied it of most everything else. Phillips Brooks chanced to be visiting a friend in this house one day when the budding orator was holding forth.

"Gracious me!" exclaimed the bishop, starting up in assumed terror. "Pray, what might that be?" "Sit down, bishop," his friend replied. "That's only young D. practicing what he preaches."

The Promenade Stopped.

Captain Deering, when he was in command of a steamer running from Portland to St. John, was once unable to sleep on account of the senseless tramp-tramp of some star gazing passenger on the hurricane deck overhead. After turning and twisting in his berth for half an hour and the tramping still continuing, Captain Deering, enraged at the loss of his sleep, rushed out in his night shirt and climbed the ladder to the hurricane deck.

The promenade passenger was frightened half out of his wits by the specter in white climbing up the ladder, but was somewhat reassured when the specter bawled out: "Say, you where are you going?"

"To St. John," replied the promenade passenger.

"Got a ticket?" pursued the ghost.

"Of course I have." "Well, then, you confounded fool, go and lie down somewhere. You needn't walk all the way to St. John!" roared the enraged Deering, and the promenade passenger stopped right there.

TAME BY COMPARISON.

The Picturesque Cascade Merely a Commonplace Sight.

"Can you direct me to Wilson's cascade?" asked a traveler of an old man who sat in the doorway of a barn close to the road.

The old man squinted his eyes and took an exhaustive survey of the questioner.

"Take your first right and follow it until you come to a fork where there's a clump of bushes," he said slowly, "and then strike off to the left. Follow that road till you come to the next crossroad and then bear off to your left again. When you've gone a piece on that road—hasn't much more, a patch—you'll come on Simmons' house. You'll know him because he wears plaid trousers, and I never saw anything like 'em anywhere else. Green and blue and red plaid they are, and his wife makes 'em for him. Some say they like the looks of 'em, and some don't. I've heard different feelings expressed; but, anyway, you can't keep from laughing when you set your eyes on 'em, I'll wager. There was a man—" "Excuse me, but I have only just so much time," said the traveler. "Will Mr. Simmons direct me to the cascade?"

The old man blinked at him a moment.

"I think he can," he answered, "but after you've seen them plaid trousers a little water running over rocks will seem pretty tame to you."

A Mistake in the Paper.

What a woman doesn't know about newspapers isn't worth knowing. The other morning Mrs. Blank was talking to her husband.

"I notice in the paper that Mr. Jones died on Sunday."

"It is a mistake, my dear," replied the husband; "he died on Monday."

"But the paper said Sunday."

"I know it, but it was an error in the print."

"I thought so, too, at first, but I got a half dozen copies of the paper, and it was the same in all of them. They certainly couldn't have made the mistake over and over again."

The husband tried to convince her, but it was no use, and he gave it up.

Cheerfulness.

Every one must have felt that a cheerful friend is like a sunny day which sheds its brightness on all around, and most of us can as we choose make of this world either a palace or a prison.—Lubbock.

Cause and Effect.

Rev. Dr. Ritchie of Edinburgh, though a very clever man, once met his match. When examining a student as to the classes he attended he said, "I understand you attend the class for mathematics?" "Yes." "How many sides has a circle?" "Two," said the student. "Indeed? What are they?" "What a laugh in the court the student's answer produced when he promptly said, 'An inside and an outside!'"

The doctor next inquired, "And you attend the moral philosophy class also?" "Yes." "Well, you doubtless heard lectures on various subjects. Did you ever hear one on cause and effect?" "Yes." "Does an effect ever go before a cause?" "Yes." "Give me an instance." "A barrow wheeled by a man." The doctor hastily sat down and proposed no more questions.

Suicide.

"I am trying to find my brother," said the gentleman from England timidly to the fierce looking person with a sheath knife in one side of his belt and a six shooter in the other. "He was in this neighborhood about four

"HE CALLED ME A LIAR, STRANGER," or five years ago. His name was Williamson—kinder goody-goody chap?"

"Yes; that's the man!"

"Guess I did know him. He committed suicide three years ago."

"What! My brother committed suicide? Why, he was the last man in the world to have done such a thing! Was he ill or in trouble, or what?"

"He called me a liar, stranger!"

Not Brought Up.

A prominent Boston pastor who spent a vacation in Maine relates an experience with a youngster of the Pine Tree State:

"While walking one pleasant morning I was startled by a sudden outburst of profanity from a hidden part of the country road. Thinking that old reproach would not come amiss, I rounded the curve and came upon a very small boy driving a big cow."

"Now, here, boy, who brought you up?" I asked.

"They didn't nobody bring me up. I walked up—all the way from Scarborough—driving this—cow."

A SATELLITE HEROINE

Neglected at First, She at Last Found Her Level.

By VIRGINIA TYLER HUDSON.
(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

"My dear," said Mrs. Robert Gilbert Parks to her husband at the breakfast table one morning, "I have decided that we must send Evelyn to Randall-Phillips college after all. It is the best school in the state, even if they do have those horrid scholarships. That is the only objection, for all the other girls are an exceptionally exclusive lot, as I have been at pains to find out. But she must go, though she be compelled to associate occasionally with a washerwoman's daughter, if one should win a scholarship and be of good moral character enough to satisfy the faculty."

So Evelyn Lucille Parks was entered at Randall-Phillips the same fall that

"EVELYN IN FOR A SINGE."

Della Henning, daughter of the widow of a poor little Methodist clergyman, achieved the ambition of her life and matriculated at the school on the scholarship she and her mother had made every known sacrifice to win. As the school year went by, though, it did not take Della long to find that the hardly won scholarship did not entitle her to social honors in the school. She came to be known only as a "greasy grind" and when the time came for the freshmen to be chosen for the college societies she waited in vain for the longest for tap on the shoulder. This was the greatest disappointment Della had ever known even in her cramped young life.

Della did not live in the college dormitory, with her own maid to wait upon her. She was compelled to take a small room in the town, for which she paid out of her earnings by doing mending, cleaning gloves, making fudge and washing the hair of the locket girls who were given a good allowance by their dotting parents. Among her first patronesses was Evelyn Parks.

Pretty, light hearted, generous, Evelyn was not long in becoming a general favorite in the college, but it seemed impossible for her to adhere sufficiently to the rules to make her an equal favorite with the faculty.

As Della sat working in Evelyn's room one afternoon after lecture hours the latter came flying in and flung herself down on the rug in front of the fire.

"It's all over, Della," she exclaimed. "My dotting parents will know after tomorrow that I'm a disgrace to the faculty, for I've never in the world passed that geometry exam."

Della looked up, with consternation written on her face.

"Why, Evelyn," she cried, "don't say that! You know you have failed to come up to the standard in three other studies, and that will mean expulsion."

"I know," wailed the miserable Evelyn, "but what can I do? I'm not a brilliant student, like you—I wish now I'd been a greasy grind—and I don't remember enough geometry to fill a page. The only thing I can do is to 'cut,' and then, even though I'm suspended, I'll have another chance later."

With sinking heart Della Henning, monitor, marked Evelyn Parks "absent" the next morning at chapel, the mark that spelled suspension. When the girl returned to college three weeks later, somewhat subdued by a sojourn in the little cottage reserved by the college authorities for such delinquents, she saw her satellite after a jolly afternoon in the room which her classmates had planned as a welcome.

"I'm going to do it this time, Della," she said, "if it means losing the basketball team."

"And I'm going to help you," announced the little scholarship girl, looking up from the interminable mending Evelyn's clothes seemed at ways to be undergoing.

"But you haven't the 'flow' now," reasoned the pretty girl. "How can you coach me when you have so much to do out of hours? At least you must let me pay you." The other girl flushed.

"Oh, I will be all right," she answered. "I need, you must say so."

Impulsively Evelyn threw her arms around her adoring friend.

"Forgive me, Della," she cried. "Of course I'll let you help me, and I know no one else could pull me through like you."

Through the weeks that followed Della stuck faithfully to her task, encouraging the weaker girl to renewed efforts when she would have given up the fight.

Almost every moment of her afternoons was taken up in this way. Occasionally thoughtless Evelyn gave thought to Della's neglected duties, but the other put her off with a laugh, saying she had had a windfall.

Evelyn could not know of the long hours of the night when her friend sat by her student lamp in her cold room sewing with cramped fingers until the first gray light came through the faded curtains of her poor little room.

Neither could she know how often the little monitor came to chapel without breakfast or when her dinner was as exalted from the candy man on the corner.

Examination day came, and it was a different Evelyn who faced it. At the close of the day she rushed to her friend.

"Oh, I've won! I've won!" she cried, with a bear hug. And Della went home with the light heart she had known since she had been ignored by the Deltas.

There was a queer feeling in her head, and her hands were dry and hot, as was her mouth. She had just sat down wearily to her sewing when there came a tap at the door. It was only her landlady, who had come in for a chat, but Della inconsiderately greeted her by faltering.

The poor woman was pale stricken. Hastily she got the girl to bed and sent for the doctor.

"If I'm," he said, shaking his head at sight of the girl. "She's in for a siege. Lack of nourishment and too great mental and bodily strain have conspired to bring on a bad fever. You say she's a college girl? How else any people? You'd better send for them."

"I'm afraid her mother can't afford to come unless the college people"—answered Mrs. Hobbs doubtfully.

"I'll speak to the president," said the doctor as he left the room. "She must have a better place than this and a nurse if she's to pull through."

The president was bland and apologetic. He was "so sorry," but there seemed nothing to do. The girl was a scholarship girl, and they had a ready-made their duty by her. Could not she be sent to a public hospital?

The doctor floundered out of the president's study without a word. As he strode across the campus a group of laughing girls sitting on the steps of a building singing in the twilight caught his eye. He stopped abruptly and went over to them.

"Young ladies," he said, "I don't believe you are as heartless as your president, and I'm going to appeal to you. There is one of your fellow students dangerously ill, without money, and if she doesn't get the proper attention she is going to die, and her death will be on the head of this school's president if she does," he added bitterly.

"I know most of you belong to wealthy families and think you will be willing to help this girl, who is sick only because of lack of proper nourishment and because, as her landlady informs me, she has been sitting up till morning every night trying to eke out an income. It was noble of her, of course, to try to get an education under such conditions, but it is likely to be fatal. Her name is Della Henning, and—"

Evelyn Parks jumped up from the steps.

"Della," she cried remorsefully. "Why, it's all my fault! Well, I should say we would help her, doctors! Come on, girls! We'll go at once!"

When Dr. Martin led the group of girls into Della's cold little hall room she was raving with fever. She knew Evelyn, though.

"Oh, have you brought them to tell me I've been picked for the Deltas, Evelyn?" she cried thickly. "I knew you would do it! You're so good to me."

The girls looked at each other remorsefully (it was their first intimation that the "greasy grind" had such an ambition as she went on: "Oh, and won't mother be pleased! She can't understand why I've failed in that, and she set her heart on it so!"

"Girls," said Evelyn, "she must be moved out of this at once. Can't she be carried on her mattress to a better room, doctor?" she asked. Then she rushed out to a telephone office and sent for a trained nurse from the city.

In three hours the nurse was in charge of the sick girl, who had been removed to a big room downstairs where there was a cozy open fire, and it was the nurse herself who had to chase Evelyn Parks and her chums away later.

At the meeting of the Delta Kappas the next night Evelyn Parks told them the whole story.

"We have never known what real nobility and worth were, girls," she said soberly, "and we came near losing the grandest girl in school through our snobbishness." When she was through Della Henning was unanimously chosen.

A few weeks later, when the sick girl was able to sit up by her fire, she wrote a long letter to her mother, who had not known of her illness.

"I have been a little sick," she wrote, "but still I'm the happiest girl in the world. My illness has shown me the girls as I never knew them before, and—just think of it—I'm to be a real Delta Kappa at last, and an officer at that! Isn't it just too wonderful to be true?"

The ABC and XYZ of ADVERTISING

A SERIES OF TEN TALKS ON ADVERTISING
written by Seymour Eaton of Philadelphia No. 10

A man succeeds not because he advertises his business but because he lives it; because he eats it, sleeps it, dreams it, builds air castles about it.

The man who never builds air castles never builds castles of any kind.

The great motive power of any business is the strenuous personal faith of the man back of it.

Put your name to the front; your own personality. This is a tremendous force in advertising. People like to know individuals. They like to feel that they are being served by men; not simply getting their goods out of the hopper of a treadmill. And if people have any kicking to do—and the American people enjoy kicking—they prefer to kick individuals. It is mighty unsatisfactory, for instance, to kick an Express Company or a Railroad or Brown, Smith & Company. One can't hit the bull's eye.

Breathe the breath of life into your advertisements. It is safe to say that nine out of every ten advertisements which we see are as dead as Egyptian mummies. They are beautifully decorated; twined around with fine linen; draped and boxed for burial. They have eyes and nose and mouth but they neither see nor speak. They don't even smell. Their faces are either made of putty or are chiseled out of beautiful marble. There is no throbbing pulse.

Advertisements are written to appeal to live people, and nothing can get into the heart of humanity so easily as another heart.

If you have faith in your goods and the public has faith in you the circuit is complete. The advertisement is simply the transmitter through which your faith operates.

The trunk lines are all laid. Every home is connected up. To put your shop in communication with one hundred and fifty thousand possible customers is dead easy. The newspapers go to press shortly after midnight. At eight o'clock tomorrow morning you can talk to one hundred thousand people about the few little attractive features of your shop which you are making ready; some suits which you are closing out at half-price or some new importations which you got through the custom house only yesterday. Don't run away with the idea that you need to apologize to the public for disturbing their breakfast with your affairs. The people like it. A newspaper without advertisements wouldn't sell.

Advertising isn't grammar; it isn't pictures; it isn't type; it isn't top of page position. It is something far more real than these things. These are merely accessories. Advertising is making the proper telepathic connection between you and the customer. It is the art of making the type speak.
